Note that this from a piece by Achim @zeileis.org who of course generally makes very sound technical choices. But it is not an official endorsement of one hosting platform over another. They are all equally welcome as long as the #Rstats code on them remains open source. 😉

All R-Forge users will be notified in the next days with more details. Everyone is encouraged to migrate to other services soon.

I migrated my projects to #Codeberg and wrote up a how-to in blog post - also useful for GitHub/GitLab/etc.

🇨🇭 After 20 years of service, the R-Forge code-sharing platform will be retired.
#rstats

Timeline:
- Until end of 2026: Normal operations.
- Jan 2027: Switch to read-only, but SVN continues to work.
- Jan 2028: SVN also read-only.

Reason: The underlying FusionForge software is no longer maintained.
